

Detailed Information Sheet

Bio-Well's GDV Camera is a revolutionary, non-intrusive way to measure human energy field using a specialized camera and software system. It was developed by the team of Dr. Konstantin Korotkov and uses powerful technology known as Gas Discharge Visualization (GDV) or Electro-Photonic Imaging (EPI) to conduct energy scans on the human body.

When a scan is conducted, a weak electrical current is applied to the fingertip for less than a millisecond. In response to this stimulus fingertip emits electrons, which are striking and exciting air molecules. Excited air molecules create gas discharge or glow. This glow is captured by the video camera and then digital image of the glow is processed by the Bio-Well Software to show energy & stress evaluations.

Each scan returns a wealth of meaningful information to provide you with a truly holistic view of the state of your wellbeing. The intersection of the fingertips glow created in Bio-Well Software is based on the concept of Acupuncture points and is verified by more than 20 years of clinical studies by hundreds of medical doctors and researchers with many thousands of patients. The scanning process is quick, easy and non-intrusive and gives real time feedback on factors affecting your energy state.

Through its innovative software and database the Bio-Well scan presents detailed analysis of the Energy Field that surrounds our body and allows you to see its day-to-day transformation and the influence of different treatments, situations and stimulus. This relates to the condition of a person as the energy field shows information about the body in light form, often in advance of any physical manifestation which makes it an ideal early warning system. Bio-Well is being used by thousands of doctors, practitioners and researchers worldwide

Bio-Well does not measure the anatomical structure of the body, but records functional/energetic condition of organs and systems at the moment of measurement.

Bio-Well analysis provides the following benefits:

- Allows to define organs and systems of the body which need attention.
- Identifies energy blockages
- Makes assessment of the follow up response of the body to different influences (treatments, emotions, mobile phone, etc).
- Provides information on psycho-emotional state and level of stress (anxiety).
- Shows the balance between the Parasympathetic (rest & repair) and the sympathetic (emergency mode fight or flight) nervous systems – which is important as we need to be in rest and repair to heal and to avoid getting unwell
- Allows easily measure response of the body to different medications, supplements and food.

NB Bio-Well is not a medical instrument, it is not designed for medical diagnostics, it measures energy and stress of a person. In case of health concerns, please, consult your doctor.
